

A

Chicken Little was in the woods one day when an acorn fell on her head. It scared her so much she trembled all over. The poor girl shook so hard, half her feathers fell out.

B

Billions of black, shrimp-size bugs with transparent wings and beady red eyes are beginning to carpet trees, buildings, poles, and just about anything else vertical in the U.S. from the eastern seaboard west through Indiana and south to Tennessee.

C

Oymyakon, in Siberia, is the coldest permanently inhabited place on Earth. Now geographer and adventurer Nick Middleton reveals the locals' secrets for coping with the cold.

D

Few shores are immune from the tide of plastic soda bottles, bags, cartons, and other trash floating on the ocean today. Now a new study suggests the problem runs deeper: Microscopic bits of plastic permeate the world's beaches and marine environment.

E

One hundred years later, the life of the Negro is still sadly crippled by the manacles of segregation and the chains of discrimination.

F

People are finding medieval toys in Britain's Thames River—and these toys have been changing how historians view the lives of medieval kids.

G

My friend Tricia suggests me to drive to the woods to watch the poor bear being hunted for pleasure. And I say yes.